"We were once again able in the record-setting year 2008 to demonstrate our strategically successful know-how in the areas of development and production of explosion-proof electrical systems for use in underground mines. In addition to benefiting from the decrease in raw materials Corporate News from April 30, 2009, HANSEN Sicherheitstechnik AG prices, Hansen Group benefited greatly from the low cost-of-materials ratio made possible by our wholly-owned subsidiary in China. Due to the general economic slowdown and its repercussions on the global economic system which cannot currently be estimated, it is very difficult to attempt an exact forecast for future years. Despite the positive trend at Hansen Group, we predict consolidated sales revenues in 2009 to be roughly at the same level as those in the year 2007. Assuming our basic business policies will remain the same, we expect that Hansen Group's sales revenues and earnings will be able to continue to show a positive trend over the mid-term". according to Tomasz Kowalczyk, CEO of Hansen Sicherheitstechnik AG.
